

INDIANA ELIGIBILITY MODERNIZATION

V-CAN Resource Directory

The organizations described below offer low-cost or free technology to non-profit organizations. V-CAN members who are interested in offering access to a computer or other technology in their offices may contact any of these organizations. Please be aware that these contacts are for information purposes only. FSSA and the IBM-led Coalition are not affiliated with these suppliers and are not responsible for any dealings you may have with them.

Virtual Scavenger Project (VSP)

Based in Indianapolis, VSP is among the 10 largest computer reuse programs in the nation and a current member of the Indiana Recycling Coalition's E-SCRAP program. VSP features computers as low as $15 as well as apprentice programs to earn computers. Low-income individuals and nonprofit organizations can purchase from their catalog which includes complete computers, computer upgrades to their current systems, and other equipment like printers. For more information, visit <http://www.vscavengers.org/>.

TechSoup

Located in San Francisco, TechSoup is an online nonprofit retailer. Their Recycled Computer Initiative allows nonprofits to purchase up to ten computers per fiscal year at a per-unit cost ranging from $200 to $400. TechSoup also sells administrative and productivity software at greatly reduced costs. For more information, visit <http://www.techsoup.org/>.

Consistent Computer Bargains for Non-Profits (CCBN)

CCBN features discount pricing for nonprofits on pre-built systems and virtually any piece of computer hardware or software an organization could need. For more information, visit <http://www.ccbnonprofits.com/>.

Computers for All

Computers for All offers refurbished computers for nonprofits and some free computer giveaways. The initiative is based in Bristol, Indiana, with five regional sites across the state. For more information, visit <http://www.computersforall.org>.

Gifts in Kind International

Gifts In Kind is the 7th largest charity in the U.S. and is a bulk-purchase nonprofit club. Their membership ranges from $115 to $900 per year depending on the size of the organization applying. The Gifts In Kind catalog covers everything from clothing to computers, so many other needed items may be acquired for nonprofits. For more information, visit <http://www.giftsinkind.org/>.

Organizations with a Specific Focus

National Cristina Foundation – Organizations serving the disabled

Successful national organization focused on giving disabled individuals the opportunity and necessary tools to use technology and computers. For more information, visit <http://www.cristina.org>.

DePauw University CTEP – Putnam County area

The Community Technology Enhancement Program provides computers to nonprofits, schools and religious institutions. The program is run by DePauw students and appears to have a very good supply of computers available. The program is limited to the Putnam County area.
